

Charles Green
140 North Road
Bedford, MA 01730
(781) 799-3878

I have been a jib operator since 2001. I am experienced in sports and other live productions, as well as documentaries, commercials, industrials, reality, news, and political events. I have also worked concerts, game shows, talk shows, and once, dental surgery (for a dental trade show).

Clients include: New England Sports Network, HDNet, BBC, ESPN, A&E, Discovery Channel, New England Cable News, Fox TV, Fox Sports, NBA TV, The Food Network, CNBC, WBZ, WCVB, PBS, and many others.

I have been gratified to have my work praised by clients. Mark Covino, the director with whom it was my pleasure to work with on the justly well regarded documentary "A Band Called Death", was kind enough to say:

"The shoot was a phenomenal success. All the footage came out perfect (brought tears to my eyes how perfect it all was), and I gotta say working with Charles was definitely one of the highlights. He was true professional and very easy to communicate to and work with. His shots blew me away. I hope we can work on future projects with him again."

Some recent examples of my work:

http://www.linkedin.com/profile/view?id=16883727&trk=nav_responsive_tab_profile

The above link is from the interfaith service that President Obama spoke at. This was a memorial service for the victims of the Marathon bombings. At about 50 seconds in, you see the kind of challenging move I especially enjoy. Working at the longer elements of the lens, while holding focus, and maintaining a well composed frame isn't always considered part of the jib's repertoire, especially live, but I was pleased with the result.

<http://www.catholictv.com/Word-on-Telethon-2013.aspx>

This is from a recent fundraiser for the Catholic TV Network

